

APARTHEID: FOCUS ON NAMIBIA

South Africa's apartheid system has been the focus of a growing international campaign to force the government to end the system. The campaign has been led by the African National Congress (ANC) and the United Democratic Movement (UDM).

A National Conference in Swaziland and U.S. Policy

The ANC and UDM have held a national conference in Swaziland, which is a key step towards the end of apartheid. The conference is expected to lead to a new constitution and a new government.

South Africa's Apartheid System

The apartheid system in South Africa is a system of racial segregation and discrimination. It is based on the idea of 'separate development' and is designed to keep the white minority in power. The system is based on the following principles:

- 1. Racial segregation
- 2. Discrimination against non-white people
- 3. Separate development
- 4. White minority rule
